

Summer Study & Intern in Ecuador - Spanish & Latin American Studies Track

Combine a summer of study at the Universidad de Cuenca in Ecuador with an immersive internship rooted in local community engagement, a homestay, and a Spanish language course! This is the perfect opportunity for anyone interested in Latin American culture and language.

Our study abroad program combines traditional classes with an integrated internship. By living with a homestay and working with local communities on an internship in the development field, you will get to know the local culture on a deeper level! During your program, you'll also have the chance to engage in social activities and fun excursions.

Study Abroad - Take a Latin American studies class in English or Spanish and a Spanish language course at your language level, earning up to six credits at the Universidad de Cuenca.

- Elective options include History of Ecuador and Latin America, Natural Heritage of Ecuador, and Cultural Heritage of Ecuador.

Intern or Service-Learning - Once a week, you'll venture into Cuenca and intern on a project matched to your interests and skills. Options range widely - from equine therapy with disabled children and a translation initiative at the museum to education initiatives.
