

AFRICA

MOZAMBIQUE

The world is only just beginning to uncover the treasures that Mozambique and its crystal waters have to offer.

On the South-east coast of Africa, just above South Africa, lies this former Portuguese colony.

It's coastal regions host stunning beaches, the occasional hippo, and world-renowned diving sites which are said to be one of the best places on earth to see the mighty whale shark – the biggest fish in the world.

After years of civil war, Mozambique has seen peace now since 1992 and while the economy is strengthening, it remains one of the poorest and most underdeveloped countries in the world.

Life outside of the project

In Tofo, where our marine project is based, you will be based right next to the beach and you will not be far away from other stunning beaches as well. During evening times after your placement work, you can relax on the beautiful beach which is literally on your doorstep. At weekends there are plenty of things to do from Scuba Diving and sailing safaris to Bazaruto Island or horseback riding on the beach. There's plenty to keep you occupied in your free time!

Weather

Average temperature: 15-31°C

Wet season: October - March

Marine Research and Conservation with Padi Diving Course

Carry out marine research and monitoring activities under the guidance of project scientists. You'll collect data, through boat surveys, swims and scuba dives off the coast.

African Marine and Wildlife Volunteer Adventure Tour

Those studying or interested in marine biology, zoology, conservation and wildlife management will gain a lot. You'll learn new skills as you volunteer throughout the trip with local project teams to collect and record data for ongoing conservation projects, both underwater and on land.
